view are all to the good from the players' viewpoint. Thursday night the team will take the road for the crucial test of the season, playing some very strong teams on a 12 or 14 day trip away from home. The boys will leave here on the midnight train Thursday night and will tackle Allegheny Steel at Peterson park, Tarentum, Pa., on Friday and Saturday. Sunday they will play the Williams club in Pittsburgh. Monday they will tackle the Schoen Steel team. Tuesday they jump over to New Castle to tackle the Castle Cord aggregation, and the next day will be seen in Massillon, Ohio. They then drop back to McKeesport for a game 364 and hop to Butler after the Mc Keesport frolic for a single contest. On August 14 they will be at Sa-lem, Ohlo, and Sunday will find them in Youngstown for a hard game. A few other games will be arranged on the trip, and arrangeents will be made to bring sev-

the end of the season. This trip will be a hard grind on the pitching staff. Payne, recently secured by the Traction team and counted upon to help in the road trip, will not be available, as he has jumped to the Boston National league team, according to announcement made at Traction headquarters. On August 28 the Traction team is wanted for the attraction at the Mesta Machine company picnic, playing the East Liberty club, which was here a short time ago for a series of games. The date will likely be accepted. Several local and Mannington fans will make the road trip with the team and a large delegation will go to Tarentum on Saturday to see the boys in action against Allegheny Steel.

Swift-sure-fatal!

A shock, a moment's tension, and he fell back-dead

OMEHOW his foot slipped. Falling, he grasped the thing closest to his hand. It was the live blade of an exposed knife switch. Swift, sure, fatal-it shot its heavy current across his heart.

Uncovered, a constant menace—as deadly as a bolt of lightning—it awaits its unwary victims in factories, in public buildings, in homes.

All over the land protest is going up

From everywhere an outcry, in ever-increasing intensity, is heard against the needless waste of life and property caused by the exposed knife

Fire marshals are ruling against it; safety officials are branding it as dangerous; labor unions are denouncing it; electrical societies are condemning it; architects and contractors are blacklisting it; from every side comes the demand from authorities—the exposed knife switch must go.

"The loss of lives and property due to defective electrical installations every year is beyond reason," declares John G. Gamber, State Fire Marshal of Illinois. "The exposed knife switch is the most common source of electrical trouble in factories," says John A. Hoeveler, Electrical Engineer, Wisconsin Industrial Commission. "A total of $1,183,674 was lost in Michigan during the year 1919 by fires due to defective installation of wires or carelessness in attending," says Fire Marshal Ellsworth.

State Fire Marshal H. H. Friedley of Indiana, in ruling against the exposed knife switch, describes it as "one of the most prolific causes of loss of life and property." John S. Horan, State Fire Marshal of West Virginia, has called it "one of the most dangerous fire and accident hazards in existence." Fire Marshal L. T. Hussey of Kansas has joined these progressive states with a similar ruling "to protect the lives and property of the State of Kansas."

The Western Association of Electrical Inspectors, in convention at St. Louis, January 27, 28 and 29, 1920, went on record without a dissenting vote as being in favor of the use of enclosed switches.

The Square D Safety Switch

The Square D Safety Switch is an absolute safeguard against shock, fire, and industrial accident of any kind.

It is a simple knife switch in a pressed-steel housing-externally operated. A handle on the outside does all the work.

Current cannot reach that handle, nor the box itself-tough, rugged insulation completely isolates all live parts. They are safely enclosed within steel walls.

The switch may be locked in the open position, too, while work is being done on the line; nobody can thoughtlessly turn on the current. This feature is saving many an electrician's life. "On" and "Off" positions are clearly indicated. The Square D Safety Switch is made in over 300 sizes, types and capacities-for factories, office buildings and homes.

The greatest remaining hazard around an electrical installation—the exposed knife switch

All over the country progressive firms leaders both in employes' welfare and in efficient production-are safeguarding the lives of their workmen and their property by replacing all old-style exposed knife switches with Square D Safety Switches. Prominent among them
